Understanding and facilitating case clinics: From theory to action

This training addresses essential aspects such as the facilitator's posture, Nonviolent Communication, and the systemic analysis of complex professional situations. These elements form the indispensable foundations for effectively establishing case clinics. The second part of the training is dedicated to the practical application of this methodology, allowing participants to experiment with and master the facilitation of case clinics in real-life situations.

Objectives

By the end of the training, participants will be able to lead case clinic sessions independently. They will have gained a deep understanding of the facilitator's role, along with essential keys for analyzing the functioning of a complex social system.
